"The democratic party in 1907, against violent opposition from those who would be affected, succeeded in placing upon the statute books of Nevada a law creating a state railroad commission."

The foregoing declaration is issued to the voters of the state by authority of Key Pittman, democratic candidate for United States senator.

W. A. Massey, now United States senator, was the man who drafted the railroad commission bill, and it was to W. A. Massey that the appointment as the republican member of the board was tendered. Concerning the railroad commission and its purposes Key Pittman, in 1907, made the following address to members of the legislature of 1907:

"What Nevada needs is a lot of good railroads. THE PRESENT RAILROADS ARE CHEAP ENOUGH; LET US NOT LOWER THEM. DO NOT PREPARE YOUR RAILROAD BILLS WITH RADICAL PROVISIONS. The state is treated all right by the lines which are doing business today, and we should give them another chance."

And for that speech Pittman was branded as a corporation lawyer by the Reno Journal, a progressive democratic newspaper, which so far refuses to support Pittman's candidacy for United States senator in his campaign.

In direct contrast to the corporation speech of Pittman, the people of Nevada have the story of Senator Massey's activities in establishing the railroad commission. In his speech at Lovelock Saturday night, Senator Massey surprised his opponents by saying:

"Ask the people of Reno who know who drafted the railroad commission bill, and they will tell you—Massey."

"Ask Stoddard and Dickerson (former attorney general and acting governor, respectively) to whom they tendered the appointment as the republican member of the board and they will tell you—MASSEY."

Mr. Pittman acknowledges that he was fighting for the railroads. He said publicly:

"The present railroad rates are cheap enough; let us not lower them."

And while he was pleading the cause of his rich clients, Massey, the poor man, was making the poor man's fight in his office in Reno, sitting up late at night and working Sundays to accomplish an adjustment of the existing exorbitant railroad rates.

Great Agricultural Future

No man is more optimistic concerning the future of the great territory west of the Rocky mountains than Professor Hardy W. Campbell, who is recognized the world over as the leading exponent of dry farming and scientific soil culture.

Wonder ceases at the amazing growth of the "back to the soil" movement when one realizes that the discoveries made by Campbell are gradually revolutionizing the farming industry of the world.

"Tillage, the scientific treatment of the soil, is of comparatively recent origin," says Campbell. "It came with the passing of the old regime—the regime of the 'man with the hoe.' To the ancient agricultural trinity, to plow, to sow, and to reap, has been added 'to till,' these three, and a fourth, and the greatest of these is 'to till.'"

The tide has turned. The strenuous life of the industrial world is losing its attraction. The lure of the city no longer charms like the evil unblinking eye of the serpent. The cry 'back to the land' is insistent and almost universal.

"The land now under cultivation in California could be made to produce three times as much as it now produces, and moreover there are thousands and thousands of acres in this and adjacent states now unfarmed because the land is considered practically worthless that by scientific cultivation could be made to bear very profitable crops."

"The great majority of the ranches in the west under the ditch, or where irrigation is being carried on, use entirely too much water on the land. By the employment of scientific principles and by knowing just how to till the land, the average rancher could use half the water and produce twice the crop. In the sections where rainfall is depended upon entirely, the science of farming is practically not known at all in this section. With the application of scientific intensive principles in farming present crops would be tripled, and this, with the addition of the vast areas not now under cultivation, this great west would be the garden spot of the world.

"The greatest essential to the growth of a country, especially in an agricultural way, is transportation. Normal industrial and commercial progress is impossible without adequate communication between producers and consumer. Were it not for the railroads the market for the products of any community would be restricted under the most favorable conditions, to a radius of 100 miles, whereas because of the splendid system of railroads, ranches and farms are carried to the markets of two hemispheres, and too, at a cost to the people of one half lower than in any other country in the world."

Gray Hairs Sign of Age; Easy Way To Restore Color

HARMLESS OLD FASHIONED REMEDY BRINGS BACK COLOR TO GRAY HAIR

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out but will start to grow as nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for 50 cents a bottle, and your druggist will give your money back if you are not satisfied after using. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance. Easy

CUDDY, DAVIS AND FERGUSON ARE A STRONG TEAM

THREE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES COUNTY COMMISSIONER ASSURED OF ELECTION

"The old war horse of the republican party" is the title often bestowed upon W. T. Cuddy, the republican candidate for re-election to the office of long term commissioner. Cuddy was first elected to that office when the county seat was located at Belmont, and has continued to fill the office without interruption until the present time. During his official life he has endeavored to act for the best interests of the tax payers, and it is his record in office that he stands fairly and squarely upon in again submitting his candidacy.

Alex Ferguson of Manhattan, the republican candidate for short term commissioner, is making his first appearance into political life and can be counted upon as being a sure winner. The Manhattan voters will support Ferguson without regard to party lines, for the people of the northern camp are aware that they must have recognition on the board of commissioners in order to be fully protected. Ferguson stands high among the northern voters, having resided in that community since the inception of the camp. As a testimony of the esteem in which he is held, the Manhattan voters tendered him a rousing reception several weeks ago when he appeared before them one night at a meeting wherein addresses were delivered by republican county candidates.

R. B. "Dick" Davis of this city, the republican candidate for the unexpired term commissioner, is also scheduled to make a strong run and finish among the leaders. Dick Davis is a strong advocate for good roads and if elected he can be depended upon to secure better thoroughfares in every section of the county.

Davis is a pioneer of Tonopah and is well acquainted with the needs of this district and county. He is as square as a die and his honesty in business dealings has won for him the respect of all with whom he has had dealings.

Taken all together the three republican candidates for county commissioners are a strong team and there is every reason to believe that he three will be elected without an exception.
